Bio:

At the age of two, Jason told his mum he would get his doctorate in palaeontology, only to later discover that he preferred drawing dinosaurs to digging them up. Jason was always drawn to acting, and was heavily involved in my undergraduate theatre programme, where he started his acting training and performed in most of the stage shows. Later, Jason pursued a Masters to become an animator, and he combined his twin love for acting and animation in his PhD about acting in motion capture. Jason's first major screen role was "Joe" in the multiple award-winning short film "Holding South", directed by Keren Green and produced by Wild Greens Productions in 2021.
